

Which way, which way

Is it still being covered in the media...?

Everyone is only watching out of curiosity...

As I've said many times before, this is a civil matter involving settlement and claims for damages, so it is a dispute between the two parties...

I'm not being biased, but I think it's enough that it's still not being covered frequently...

Especially on TV...

I can understand why this situation has come to this...

Because there are no other entertainment-related articles like this...

Current affairs media are especially regular domestic and international related articles.

If I wasn't the odd one out... there would be no suspicion... But if that situation were to occur... from my partner.

I'm sure they'll start asking me questions like, 'Which one? Which one?' and asking me to confirm my gender... and even then...

There may be four ways...
