

I am definitely not eligible

I have no interest in stories about celebrities at all, so I have never made any works or posted anything about them, but in this day and age when there are so many reports on Google about claims for damages made by people who are supposed to be ordinary members of the public but are not criminal offenders, I wonder what Japan should be thinking about right now... I wonder if it is the role of the mass media to lead the way...

I hope that both parties will understand that this is a problem and settle it...

I also feel like there's a bit of jealousy in this. By the way, this person

It seems that the restriction is "being a man despite having a gentle demeanor"... I certainly don't qualify~~~ I will be creating this interesting content today... By the way... if you search for "Takakuwa Hirohito" in Google search... the cover of my work "Dr. Coats Clinic" is listed... but I don't remember it...
