

What is true strength

A strong person... a man with muscular muscles

Many people probably think this way, but as you can sometimes see on YouTube, a video like the one below shows a contest between a bodybuilder and a manual laborer. It looks like the former is obviously stronger, but in reality, the latter wins...

① Bodybuilder

Purpose (a sport in which people compete to show off their physical beauty)

② Manual laborer

Purpose (earns a living solely from labor)

③ Fighter (professional wrestling, K1, etc)

Purpose (to earn a living solely from that martial art or to be an amateur)

④ Combat sports other than ③

Purpose (earning a living solely from the sport or amateur activities)

⑤ Self-Defense Forces/Police Officers

Purpose (occupations involving rescue and other work activities while first ensuring one's own safety)

⑥ Secret Service/SP

Purpose (Profession to protect even at the risk of one's own life)

⑦ Viruses and other bacteria

(bacteria that have adverse effects on the human body)

⑧ Insects and bacteria that carry ⑦

(insects that are considered pests, such as flies and mosquitoes... some of which are still unknown)

Just as there are still areas where people are infected with malaria through mosquito bites, insects have no conscious intention... it is simply a result of their actions.

⑨ Illness

(Diseases caused by daily habits or stress, etc.)

Again, no one makes these habits with the intention of getting sick.

Ranking in the above items that I am conscious of and pay attention to

⑨ > ⑦ > ⑧ > ⑤ と ⑥ > ③ > ④ > ② > ①

(It is impossible to rank the items between ③ and ⑥ in general.)

Also, when it comes to "purposeful activities and occupations," it is nonsense to rank them by strength.

In other words, for modern people who live their everyday lives, the strongest are those who pay attention to ⑨ and also women who are weak but healthy...they are also the strongest, which shows that people can't be judged by their appearances...

(A side note)

On July 1st, I received 20,120 yen in welfare payments, and on the same day I also received a transfer of just under 5,000 yen for gas.

Currently, I still have 397 yen left in PayPay Money...

It's my daily routine to buy and sell items that I bought when I had money and that I don't have any problems returning or selling at auctions. And I make money by earning points through surveys. The next payout date is August 1st. It's an undeniable fact that the more I struggle financially, the more I engage in "demonic onslaughts."
