

Baby looks at baby's face

As expected today, too,

The baby always looked at me intently... instinctively, I guess...

Babies have no knowledge or experience, so this was the first time they'd seen me in years...

That's what I mean...

They give off some kind of aura, they stand out, and they're immediately recognizable, which is why even non-humans make a fuss about them...

Non-humans are instinctive, but babies are also mostly instinctive...

So they looked at me intently...

"Maybe this is what they mean when they say, 'I can't do it from a woman I don't know'".

By the way,

It would be strange to call me a hero... Someone who is upset about a 5,000 yen cut in their pay, and who still can't buy anything, is not a hero... So, instead of calling me a hero, I would be more satisfied if you called me poor.